FACULTY FELLOWSHIPS AVAILABLE, SUMMER, 1958

The eleventh annual College-Business Exchange Program will be available in 1958. Under this program, business firms offer college professors the opportunity of six-weeks, on-the-spot study of their operations during the summer months.

In 1957 eighty-six fellowships were awarded by 58 business firms to professors from 80 different colleges and universities.

Benefits

Among the benefits most often mentioned by professors are:

1. They are enabled to see the internal workings of a business
2. They gain an insight into management problems.
3. They are enabled to check some of their theories and beliefs against actual experience in business.
4. Many develop case material for later classroom and research use.
5. They find the experience useful in counseling students in vocational opportunities.

How the Program Works

The objective of the Program is to give the candidate a fairly comprehensive picture of the operations of a business firm. This is through interviews with supervisors and top executives. Time does not permit an exhaustive study of technical details of manufacturing or engineering. Experience indicates that teachers are interested in such problems as pricing, cost analysis, incentive systems, business research, finance, and industrial and public relations.

Each firm works out the details of its training program, taking into account the special interests of the teachers. Several firms have concluded that assigning a specific project to the teacher results in maximum interest on the part of the teacher and at the same time accomplishes the purposes of the program. Most firms, however, have adopted the over-all interview approach. The project method, to be successful, must be carefully conceived, intelligently guided, and wisely executed by the teacher.

Some type of a report of his experience is ordinarily prepared by the fellow for the business firm. Most firms have requested frank criticism from the candidates.

Choice of Firm

Candidates are asked to state their choice of the type of firm they would like to study. Because of the problems involved in matching specific requests with available fellowships, such requests should be confined to fairly broad classifications--manufacturing, finance, insurance, transportation, distribution, and the like.

Time of Study

The six-week period of study usually occurs during the last half of June, July, and August. The actual dates are determined by each business firm, guided by the stated preference of the fellow. It is important that the six weeks be an uninterrupted period.

Financing the Program

Business firms pay each fellow his transportation costs between the school and place of business, plus $800 to cover living expenses for the six weeks, or in proportion for shorter periods. The stipend is not intended as an inducement to make this a summer job, but it does ordinarily enable the teacher to meet expenses.

Selection of Candidates

Fellowships will be granted, as far as possible, to college and university staff members who are making a career in the academic field. Most firms choose relatively young teachers but a number of deans and heads of departments are among those selected.

Most of the candidates chosen are from economics departments and schools of business from the fields of management, marketing, finance, accounting, and law. In recent years, an increasing interest in the fellowships has come from other fields. Among those chosen have been professors from English departments, principally speech and business communications, political science, sociology, geography, guidance and placement, psychology, mathematics, and history.

From the applications received, recommendations are made by the Foundation to business firms. But, since the Foundation acts only in a liaison capacity, the final approval of candidates for fellowships rests with the business firm.

Applications for fellowships should be mailed to the Foundation not later than February 1, 1958.

Inquiries may be addressed to Dr. W. M. Curtiss, Foundation for Economic Education, Irvington-on-Hudson, New York.

Final awards will be made by April 1, 1958.

NEW YORK TIMES

The New York Times issue of January 6, 1958 will carry the annual review and forecast of business, industry, and finance. Instructors who feel their students would benefit by purchasing this issue are asked to make an appropriate announcement in class.

All copies will be reserved. To be sure of obtaining a copy, the student must purchase a ticket at the Campus Store not later than Thursday, December 19. Tickets are five cents each. This issue will be sold only to ticket holders.

CAMPUS STORE

The Campus Store will be open on Saturday, December 14 and Saturday, December 21 from 9:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M. for the convenience of faculty members, employees, students and their families who wish to shop for gifts.
